In Loving Memory of Mark Andrew McPhee.

Taken From Us Before His Time...

After Glow

I'd like the memory of me to be a happy one. I'd like the leave and afterglow of smiles when life is done. I'd like to leave an echo whispering softly down the ways, of happy times and laughing times, and bright and sunny days. I'd like the tears of those who grieve to dry before the sun of happy memories that I leave when life is done.

From the class of 2002 –
Mark, we love you and remember you...

SENIOR CLASS

Eric Moberg and his classic lifted Chevy pick-up. This truck can usually be found in the auto shop or down in the back parking lot while Eric waits for the last possible second to enter the building.

Nicole Hanson and her Vanco-junk. It is a small wonder that the amount of distractions in this van have not yet caused her to drive off the road.

Darrin Kelm and his white Corvette. This car usually graces the auto shop so more shiny objects can be added to the engine and hopefully make it into a car worthy of its sound system.

Mike McCarthy and his red Camaro. Unlike Awalt all Mike knows about his Camaro is that it gets him back to school everyday as long as you turn the key and maybe put gas in it every once and awhile.

Center: Mike Awalt can be seen driving his Chevelle when it is in working condition. When it does not run he can be found with his red Camaro. With any luck the Chevelle will be up and running by the time we graduate.

Nate Gurney and his Monte Carlo. This is his new car after his last one lost a battle against Steve Farrell in the back parking lot. Hopefully he has learned that cars don't always win when they run people over.

Sara Gates and her Trans Am. She likes to pretend that she owns a muscle car. Sadly this is probably as close as she will ever come to owning her dream car.

Ian Hocker and his Lincoln Mark VII. He is one of the few kids to own a Lincoln, like his father said, he will never own a Lincoln for his first car, but he does for his second.

Jenn Hanley and her car of stickers. Her car shows off her personality. It expresses her views on music, life and many other things.

Erin Feeney and her personally decorated car. It has blue hot pinks running straight across the hood and roof, orange flames, and her motto Live, Love, Make Art is written on the side.

Steve Farrell and his Ford Ranger. This truck is one of the biggest Ford Monster trucks to ever enter the parking lot. It is one of his many cars ranging from Mustangs to a Cutlass.

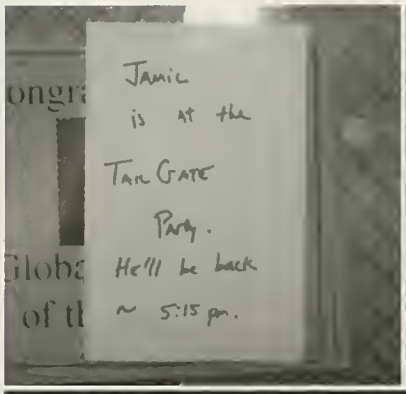
Junior Prom 2001

Before saying good bye to their junior year, the class of 2002 decided to gather one last time together on May 18th, 2001 at Independence Harbor in Assonet, MA, for the most expensive junior prom to occur in the entire United States last year. The junior class had chosen "These are the Moments" as this year's theme, complete with Edwin McCain's I Could Not Ask for More as the official prom song and a very classy Grand March around the grassy grounds. Highlights of the evening included Michael McCarthy serenading Prom Queen Allison Smith and King John-Paul Kenn with the classic Neil Diamond hit, Forever in Blue Jeans, and Mike Tupper breaking out his driver to shoot a few golf balls off of the porch while we all waited for dinner. All in all, the evening was quite a success, leaving the senior class executive committee pleased with their efforts, resolving never again to volunteer to make star-shaped place cards.

The Tailgate Party



East Bridgewater 28
Rockland 26

EAST BRIDGEWATER, MA November 9, 2001 -It was a night for dreams to come true. After years of losing to the Rockland Bulldogs two East Bridgewater students decided to take matters into their own hands. Loyal football fans Derek Volner and Jake Perkins may never have scored a touchdown for the Viking football team, but that didn't stop them from wanted to help the Vikings. These two high school students planned the first ever tailgate party in the student lot before the game. Here is what Jake Perkins had to say about it, "I feel that overall we were heavily scrutinized for our tailgating efforts. No one thought we could really make it happen, however, we persevered, and kept the dream alive. I mean, the outcome says it all, the mighty Vikings came out on top over the Bulldogs for the first time in years, and I'd like to think that we helped the cause." The Vikings were able to pull out an exciting 28-26 victory over the Bulldogs that night, and Jake and Derek helped bring school spirit back to East Bridgewater, and for that they will be remembered.

"...we persevered, and kept the dream alive."

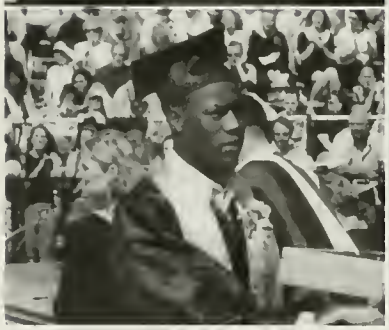
Seniors

Graduation



Welcome
Goodbye

Hollywood Squares is one way that underclassmen pass their time as they wait to become seniors.

Kim DeAngelo, Holly Runnals and Lara Batti show their support for the Viking Cross Country Team at the State Championship meet in Grafton.

It is always best to be the big fish, but not everyone can be a senior, so here are those who aren't, but maybe one day will be.

The Kids that aren't Seniors.

Jess Gormley is her name, and I don't know what else to say about this picture, so that's all.

These girls went to the semi-formal. GOOD FOR THEM!!!

To anyone involved spiritually, mentally, or physically with the creation of the beautiful Flag that now works its magic at Ground Zero. I very sincerely want to convey my heartfelt thanks as well as deliver thanks from New York to you. It is precisely because of the spirit of young women and men like all of you that America will always remain strong! That is proven in the beautiful art that you created that will be appreciated for a long time to come.

It seems so long ago that my wife Lynne (who is my hero) came home from a day at the high school as the school nurse. She told me that nurse Pat Urban and the future Nurses Club would like to do something for those working at Ground Zero.

Well as you all know better than I it became a real group effort involving many different school departments and students. I applaud all of you. When I first saw it I couldn't believe that you were able to make something so beautiful so quickly; even as I realize you worked long hours producing it. Group efforts are the best! Its what I like the best about being a firefighter.

The day after you entrusted it to me I was heading to the Bronx for a memorial service for Steve Mercado from engine 40 a longtime friend and Red Sox nemesis. ☺ It was my honor and privilege to have the flag as my traveling companion. I had in mind a spot for the flag that I remembered from 2 months ago; a place where many would gather for a much needed break, food, etc. and to be inspired by messages sent and posted. (I will never forget letters from children who placed them in small bags of cookies handed out at Ground Zero). That would be a good spot I felt if I was allowed to bring it that far.

First though I wanted my good friends at 35 Truck and 40 Engine to see this flag. They and some of the family members were very moved by the wonderful sayings and brightness of Americas glory being produced by you! Eleven good men were lost from this firehouse on Sept. 11. They always were special. Their final deed is a testimony to their incredible human courage. Courage takes many forms. Their surviving comrades as well as family members who have dealt with so much and continue to, are an inspiration to anyone who witnesses their faith and dedication to each other. (I have included a letter written in the wee hours of Sept. 14 as hope was beginning to fade by Capt. Jim Gormley. I know he won't mind me sharing it with you. Even as I was at his firehouse when he wrote this I don't even have a clue what it must have been like to write such a courageous letter). As I left the firehouse carrying the flag those great guys were yelling thanks to all of you; as well as directions for me to the Bronx so I wouldn't get lost (easy to do in the Bronx) ☺.

There are no less than six very necessary security checkpoints to the perimeter of ground zero. At the first two NYPD officers and 2 guardsmen stopped me. They asked to see it. As I took it out of the car they all smiled. Even though it was only 8:30 AM Saturday morn. Many civilians were gathered at this point behind the barricades. Upon seeing the flag they yelled for me to bring it over. I did and they took pictures and listened to me tell them who made it and where it was going. The people of New York need things to smile about and the flag certainly accomplished that. They were very proud of what you did. I was just the honored messenger.

At each checkpoint I was allowed to continue with the request that if I couldn't go any further they would love it to rest at their duty station. But I had the idea to bring it to the same area where I had been inspired by wonderful messages but none more beautiful than this one. Finally I could drive no further due to heavy equipment and rubble from the buildings. As I approached on foot some fine fire fighters, police and iron workers were resting on a wall. They started clapping and many thumbs were up. Again I explained who you were. They voiced their thanks. One fire fighter Kevin Malone from 315 Engine in Queens suggested that the Command Post would love to see it! Kevin walked there with me just inside the final checkpoint. Capt. Jim Rogers and the guys there loved it. I asked them where they would like it to go. They explained to me that a recently constructed command post at the point where everyone was working in ground zero would be a fitting place. FF. Malone showed me where it was. Battalion Chief Carroll and the fire fighters working and everyone down there thought it was awesome. I could fill pages with their comments as the flag was held up! I am so proud of you and proud to tell you that the flag is only a glance away from those who are working.

Even on the sunniest day the dominant color at ground zero is the bleakest gray. The boldness of your creation lends a true and inspirational bright spot to where it was most needed. The bleakness of ground zero is overpowered by the spirit of America and your flag is an example of that. I felt that way eight weeks ago as well as Saturday morning. I swear you can feel the prayers in the air. By coincidence on Veterans Day you may have known President Bush took part in a moving memorial service at ground zero. A little further in from that spot is where your flag rests. I am sure he not only saw it but commented on it.

I did not see the final mounting of the flag as I needed to head off to the memorial service at the Bronx, but I knew it was in great hands.

As life unfolds though I have seen it again. This past week while at another memorial service for Mike Otten from 35 Truck a recently produced video was being played about Mike's life and the events of Sept. 11th. Towards the end of the video the camera is scanning recent ground zero close-ups. The camera pans to the workers and then to the command post itself on which is mounted a beautiful, proud, inspirational flag. Your flag!! Thank you so very much!!! As we now head to the holiday season workers at ground zero will need more inspiration and prayers. Your creation could not have come at a better time!

Sincerely your honored messenger

Al Lynch

This is an update on how your wonderful flag is doing. On Dec. 11th after attending a ceremony at a Manhattan firehouse, I revisited Ground Zero! As I walked up to the area it was shining brightly in the distance! A group of fire fighters were at the Command Post finishing up their break, ready to resume digging. They pointed out a piece of the twisted metal from flight 111 resting under the watchful eye of the flag. They had just brought it out the day before. Fire Fighter Dan McCarvell told me, "We love to look at the flag, thank everyone for us."

The flag is a fixture on the command post which is active 24/7 and will be until the job is done. The flag oversees the entire scope of ground zero operations. Your flag is visible from quite a distance, bringing inspiration to those who need it most! Thank you again East Bridgewater High School! You should be proud! You have really helped the cause.

Our Kara Jeanne:
Quiet and unassuming, never needing the limelight,
A two-year-old amuses herself with books or plastic kitchen toys,
She watches, taking in everything, and contemplates her options,
Dose she fallow the path set by others or boldly seeks her own way?
She makes her decision and lives life listening to her own heart and by doing so,
Makes us all proud!

Kara, We have always been proud of who you are and the choices you have made. We always will be. Remember who loves you!

You've not only been her best friend, you've been like my own daughter. I'll never forget the million mall trips, NYC, the summers at OOB, the pre-dance make overs and all the "road trips." I'll always cherish the memories and our time together. I'm proud of you and wish you'll the best for the future.

Snowy the owl opened his eyes after a 12 year slumber, to discover that Evan, who'd been 6 at his last adventure, was all grown up and ready to "leave the nest." He looked at her, rubbed his sleepy eyes, and whispered to her softly, "Evan, my old friend, now that you can fly, i will fly with you." And both fledglings stood, poised on the sunniest peak of a mountain called "life."

Evangelyn, the greatest message you brought you daddy and me was yourself. We love you loads 'n' loads....
